

Digital Content and Community Guidelines

University of King's College (King's) regularly posts content to its online channels, including but not limited to www.ukings.ca, ukingscommunity.ca, and various social media channels. This content includes text-based interviews, profiles, guest commentary and news items, as well as video and other media as appropriate. King's digital content is intended to share stories that are relevant and engaging from the King's community, and which are consistent with King's values and its goals of promoting an equitable, diverse and inclusive King's community. For more information on the regulations, policies, and code of conduct that inform these values and goals, please refer to the Yellow Book [PDF].

Recognizing that content created at a particular time is subject to contextual change as events move forward in real time. As a result, King's reserves the right to, at will, temporarily suspend or permanently remove published content on any of these channels that for any reason is no longer working to uphold King's values and goals as described above.

As part of its digital presence King's maintains accounts on various social media platforms and other online channels that allow users to comment. King's welcomes the opportunities for community engagement, discussion and sharing information that these channels present. Comments, and replies to other users' comments that are shared as part of a respectful dialogue are welcome.

King's reserves the right to remove comments that use its digital comment sections to solicit, spam or promote endeavours unrelated to the King's community.

King's maintains a standard of encouraging open and respectful dialogue, and we believe in a user's right to freedom of speech and expression of opinion, thought, idea or belief. However, King's reserves the right to remove comments, replies or other content it deems to be unacceptable, disrespectful, or hateful at its sole discretion. Unacceptable comments, replies or content may include but are not limited to threats, profanity, spam, abusive commentary, racist, sexist, homophobic or transphobic content.

King's reserves the right to remove and/or block users who are found to have violated these community guidelines.

Thank you for your help in keeping King's online community spaces safe, supportive and vibrant.

For questions or concerns, please email elizabeth.grant@ukings.ca.