Darren Calabrese is a documentary and editorial photographer based in Halifax. Darren's work has been recognized by World Press Photo, Pictures of the Year International, Communication Arts, American Photography 34 among other notable awards.

While in conversation, Darren shares his experiences publishing his first book - the first by a major publisher in Canada to focus on photojournalism: the process of pairing his photographs with his writing, how he edited and paced the visual narrative, and the expectations and surprises encountered when taking his photojournalism into the publishing world.
